1. The big picture

Europeans came for the spice and cotton trade after the Ottoman capture of Constantinople (1453) closed the old land routes. Bartolomeu Dias rounded the Cape in 1488 and Vasco da Gama reached Calicut in 1498. Each company then used trade, forts and Indian rivalries to gain land, and after the decline of the Mughals (1707) the English and French fought for the Carnatic, then the English alone took Bengal.
